Washington State Allies in Advocacy (Allies) is an activist organization whose mission is to improve the lives of all people with developmental disabilities (DD). We are governed and staffed by people with DD. We advocate for policies and programs in all aspects of society that increase the power of people with DD to make the decisions to live the lives we choose, the ability to access all the resources available to everyone else, the opportunities to build wealth and have an equal say in our local, national and international communities. We believe the concerns of people with DD are often the same as many others who are trying to break down social and community barriers. We are committed to building partnerships to fight for common concerns. We believe all people with DD should be free from ableism and other forms of discrimination, be treated as equals not only in word but through the true exercise of power and have the same opportunities in our lives that are available to our neighbors.

The ADA was signed into law on July 26, 1990, by President George H.W. Bush. The ADA is one of America's most comprehensive pieces of civil rights legislation that prohibits discrimination and guarantees that people with disabilities have the same opportunities as everyone else to participate in the mainstream of American life - to enjoy employment opportunities, to purchase goods and services, and to participate in State and local government programs and services. Modeled after the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin - and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 - the ADA is an "equal opportunity" law for people with disabilities.

building stronger households. Many of our direct services focus upon housing as the foundation for dignity, stability, and growth. These services include providing Centralized Intake for Homelessness Intervention through Access Point for Housing (AP4H); assisting families and individuals with re-housing; working with faith communities to reduce barriers to housing and to create new affordable housing; and youth homelessness prevention. The Center for Direct Services strives to work with households from a strength-based approach, identifying the strengths and supports that a household already possesses, and connecting to community and more formal resources to help build toward self-sufficiency. In connecting to the community, we seek to engage volunteers in ways that are meaningful for the households and volunteers.

Most of the infants and toddlers served by the Birth to Three Developmental Center qualify for services under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). These children have at least a 25% delay in one or more developmental areas (cognitive, physical, communication, social/emotional, or adaptive skills). We serve children and their families living in South King and Pierce Counties and accept referrals from concerned families, pediatricians and other health care providers, school district personnel, early head start, and other social service programs.

The Brain Injury Alliance of Washington (BIAWA) is a small, non-profit organization that has exhibited the power to do great things. The BIAWA was originally founded in 1982 as the Washington State Head Injury Foundation by family members determined to create a system of support for all Washingtonians affected by Brain Injury. Over the years, the BIAWA has become a statewide resource for individuals with brain injury, managing the Washington State Brain Injury Resource Center and offering intensive resource management in most counties. The BIAWA is proud to serve 10,000+ individuals a year through free classes, support groups, information and referral services, and social opportunities. The BIAWA is committed to responding to the needs of our community, and we are honored to be a part of peoples' journeys through Brain Injury.

Bridges provides a safe place for you and your child to grieve. We support families with children between the ages of 4 and 18 who are coping with a loved one's serious diagnosis or who have experienced the death of someone they care about. We offer services for children because they grieve differently than adults. Children grieve over the course of their whole development. It's vital they feel supported as they come to understand the illness or death of someone close to them.

C.A.S.T. for Kids was designed to create an environment where children (ages 6-18) and adults could benefit, sharing a day of fun on the water that they may not otherwise get to experience. Children's groups from the local area are hosted at a local site and supplied with fishing rods & reels, a t-shirt, hat and tackle box, partnered with a volunteer experienced angler (guide), and escorted onto a motorized boat, where, along with their caretaker, are shown the proper techniques of fishing and are educated on natural resources. They all then return from their morning fishing excursion to a BBQ lunch and awards ceremony. Call or visit the website for more detailed information or find out how you can host an event in your local area.

Care.com is the world's largest online family care platform. Founded in 2006 on the understanding that quality family care is both a fundamental human need and a key driver of economic growth and empowerment. When children receive quality care in their critical formative years, they are on a path to achievement and success. When seniors receive quality care in their homes, healthcare costs decline with fewer hospital stays. When we have a strong caregiving workforce, all these things are possible. Care.com offers an array of services that enable families to find, manage and pay for care and provide employment opportunities for caregivers. These include a robust suite of safety tools and resources, easy ways for caregivers to be paid and obtain professional benefits, household tax and payroll services for families, and customized corporate benefits packages covering child care and senior care services.

Cares of Washington's mission is to provide tailored opportunities for people with disabilities and low incomes to become self-sufficient, creating individualized paths to economic self-sufficiency. Cares combines career coaching, financial skills education, vocational and educational training, support services, and job placement into a cohesive plan for each client, mitigating barriers to employment and maximizing each person's potential for independence. Cares firmly believes that it is simply not enough to just help someone find a job, any job. We emphasize jobs with career pathways and the potential for advancement, benefits, and living wages for every client that walks through our doors. We recognize that solely getting someone a job also is not enough. Some individuals need additional coaching, others need help obtaining clothing suitable for work, some need help with transportation, and still, others need help making and living on a budget. To address these and other needs, we work closely with community partners to coordinate services and resources, building a network of support for each client.

We believe the elderly should be able to live in security and dignity. Catholic Community Services and Catholic Housing Services provide a variety of services to seniors and to people with disabilities that dignifies each individual while providing the needed tools to help extend independent living and promote physical and mental well being. As our senior population continues to grow, we are constantly looking for new ways to provide solutions to a variety of care challenges and opportunities. Historically, CCS has provided home care services that enable seniors and people with disabilities to remain in their own homes. In addition, we provide this to people with low or no income, as well as to people who are able to pay for the service. An outgrowth of our home care programs has been the recognition that low income seniors who are not homebound need nutritional meals and socialization. To this end, numerous senior meal sites as well as Meals on Wheels have been established in Pierce County. Other services to seniors and people with disabilities include referrals through Volunteer Services, a vast network of help that matches volunteers to the needs of seniors and others; low income housing, and volunteer transportation.

Center for Therapeutic Intervention provides a wide variety of services to our pediatric clients and their families. We perform both standardized and non-standardized evaluation and screening for children to determine areas of strength and vulnerability in motor and sensory areas. Consultation is provided to parents and other professionals in order to enhance each child's well-being at home and in their educational setting. Our direct services may include both individual and group based Occupational Therapy treatment, as well as parent education. We collaborate when appropriate with physicians and other professionals in the areas of speech therapy, counseling, mental health, and education. Treatment sessions may be scheduled weekly, twice monthly, or whenever is optimal to meet the family's objectives. Goals for Occupational Therapy are individualized for each client, but the aim for all is to focus on strengths and improve abilities for the 'occupations' of school, play, and family life.

CHDD is one of the nation's largest and most comprehensive interdisciplinary research and training centers focusing on a wide array of developmental disabilities. More than 600 University of Washington faculty and staff members, as well as numerous doctoral and post-doctoral students, provide clinical services, interdisciplinary clinical and research training, and technical assistance and outreach training to community practitioners and community agencies. CHDD is one of the few centers in the country that encompasses two major programs, one focusing on research and the other on clinical services, training, and community outreach. This structure encourages strong connections between researchers and clinicians, and creates an important bridge between basic research and state-of-the-art clinical programs. The Eunice Kennedy Shriver Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities Research Center (IDDRC), supported by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, studies underlying causes of intellectual and other developmental disabilities, and develops behavioral and biomedical techniques to prevent disabilities or minimize their impact. The University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (UCEDD) is part of a national network supported by the Administration on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities, established in every state to train professionals within an interdisciplinary framework to meet the needs of people with disabilities, provide clinical services and model projects, reach out to the community with technical assistance and training, conduct applied research, and disseminate information widely.

Child Protective Services is a state agency that investigates reports of child abuse and neglect. Child safety is the first concern of Child Protective Services. They will work with both parents to safely care for their child. CPS can also go to court to remove a child from the parents' care if necessary to protect the child. CPS files a "dependency petition" with the court if it believes that the child has been abused or neglected or is at risk of harm and must be removed from the mother and/or father's care. This begins a court process called a dependency case. At the court hearings, the CPS worker and both the mother and the father can provide information to the court. The judge or commissioner decides issues such as where the child should live, what services are needed to support the family and/or return the child to his or her mother or father and how often visits between the parents and child should occur.

A guardian is appointed by the Superior Court to act for a person whom the court has found to be incapacitated and unable to handle their own affairs. A guardian is responsible for the individual's care while considering and respecting the individual's preferences. The guardian must adhere to strict legal requirements including regular reporting to the Court. A guardian is only appointed when all other options are exhausted. Choice Guardianship is a leading provider of guardianship services to clients in the Puget Sound area. We may act as guardian, care manager, nurse advocate, fiduciary, or assist with residential placement. The certified professionals in our agency work hard to enhance quality of life, encourage independence, and provide safe and supportive living environments. Choice Guardianship is passionate about taking a personable and professional approach towards providing support and guidance for clients and their families. We promise to treat our clients with respect, listen to their concerns, and advocate on their behalf.

As part of the strategic plan to end homelessness in Pierce County and design a “best practice” model to access homeless services, Associated Ministries, Catholic Community Services, and Greater Lakes Mental Healthcare has contracted with Pierce County to provide Coordinated Entry for homeless individuals and families. Homeless households will have creative, problem solving conversations with a Coordinated Entry Specialist about their current homeless crisis. Coordinated Entry Specialists will act as thought partners as a plan is developed to end the household’s current homeless crisis. The client driven plan could result in independent housing, referrals to housing programs, or referrals to other resources in the community.
